„A good work is the work, you love. And only with the love for your occupation you can reach the heights of the mastership“, that's the slogan of Mr. Michael Hasse.

The seminar „Techniques for processing various types of karakul lamb“ will be organized several times daily during the 14th MEXA MOSCOW which takes place from 20th – 22nd October 2006. The designer and furrier Michael Hasse is initiator and leader of this seminar. With his extensive education and 40 years professional experience in the fur industry Michael Hasse belongs to the most well-known furrier world-wide. In Russia Michael Hasse has co-operated with established designers and fashion houses and has optimized production lines in different fur factories.

„A high-quality furrier work is based on a faithful, careful and creative function“, explains Michael Hasse. He teaches this in the furrier school founded by him. This school has opened its gates 2003 in St. Petersburg and is unique in Russia. Very important is that the obtained techniques of the furrier handcraft correspond to the European standard. Furthermore he counts also furrier from Italy, France, Greece, Namibia and China to his „apprentices“. This opens for Russian students at his furrier school new perspectives abroad. The collaboration with European design institutes, art and fashion academies, technical schools and universities made it possible to finalize many common projects.

In the course of the MEXA MOSCOW 2006 which takes place at the Expocentr Fairgrounds in Hall 3 Michael Hasse presents in his seminar sewing techniques for products from Karakul and broadtail persian lamb. Numerous registrations to participate in the seminar are already done by now. This shows that the topic karakul lamb is a trend topic in Russia. The attendance makes a registration urgently necessary.
